Korn Ferry asks executives and directors from eligible companies, along with financial analysts, to rate companies in their own industry on nine criteria. Interviewees evaluate each company on each attribute, and a company's overall score is determined by the average of the individual attribute scores. Companies that rank in the top half of their industry are defined as most admired within their industry.

"Fortune congratulates all of the companies whose competitors and peers voted them onto the 2023 Fortune World's Most Admired Companies list as a recognition of their achievements in a challenging year," said Fortune Editor in Chief Alyson Shontell.
